A terrible truth shone through his words. For even our writers, many of them, are sick of a fever; a fever caught easily from machinery and other short cuts to material prosperity. The picture-show is a symptom; the revue is a symptom; modern sensational journalism, freak sculpture, cubism, vorticism, futurism, dadaism, formless verse; they are all symptoms. Little cliques of writers spring up like rank weeds in a swamp. Strange parasitic growths gather round them. Thinking these things, I wrote, gaily and quickly, this little book of absurdities. Some of them are at least as funny as the more serious work of our English cliques. You will, if you read the works of the ultra-modern poets, catch their characteristics: love of sudden bathos, startling epithets, meaningless phrases, mad similes, a fear of being sincere for too long, an affected cynicism.
